

SOMEBODY ~~HAS~~ ^{GETS} TO DO IT

VOLUNTARY

A zombie comedy sketch with no zombies.

A dimly lit living room with a dark couch in the foreground. A window with light-colored curtains is in the background, letting in some light. To the right of the couch is a small table with a lamp that has a white shade. The wall to the right of the lamp is covered in vertical wood paneling. A white door is visible on the left side of the frame.

LOGLINE

A friend group hides out from the apocalypse. One of them staggers in with a bite and begs to be put down. A friend volunteers to do it, a little too eagerly. What follows is the pettiest standoff at the end of the world, and nobody in the room comes out clean.

TONE & REFERENCES

STRAIGHT FACE, ROTTEN HEART.

Key & Peele and SNL digital short. Shot and performed like a real zombie movie: the lighting, the stakes, the tears. The comedy lives entirely in the deadpan and in how small and stupid the real conflict turns out to be. Nobody winks. The more sincere it plays, the harder it lands.

THE SCENE, PART ONE

EVERYONE'S CRUSHED. ONE GUY IS THRILLED.

- Cold open. Cristian is being patched up, bloody, two teeth gone. Nineteen days in. The good water runs out tomorrow. Something drags past outside and everybody stops breathing.
- The burst-in. Dean flies through the door with a bite on his forearm. "Tie me up. You have to kill me." Someone says let me see it. He refuses. Nobody clocks it.
- The volunteer. Terry steps up. "I'll do it." Beat. "No, I have to be the one." Why? "You guys know. Because I actually hate him."
- The pitch. "Would you rather get killed by someone who's going to enjoy it, or a friend who won't, and it takes four tries?" Dean, cornered: "...Just do it."

A dimly lit room, likely a bedroom or a study. In the foreground, a person is lying down, their back to the camera, on a bed or couch. They are wearing a light-colored shirt. In the background, a lamp with a warm, yellow glow sits on a table. The lamp has a simple, conical shade. Behind the lamp, there is a window with sheer curtains, and some indistinct objects are visible on a surface. The overall atmosphere is quiet and intimate.

THE SCENE, PART TWO

THE REVEAL, AND THE FALLOUT.

- Too comfortable. Terry moves in with the knife, no hesitation. "This is weird, right?" "Yeah." "Not for me. This is therapeutic."
- The catch. Lost in his own performance, Dean works an arm loose and throws it up. The wound smears, and it should not. Terry lifts the forearm to Dean's own mouth. The teeth match.
- The unravel. "I KNEW it. I knew you'd kill me." He faked the whole thing to expose the guy who hates him. "Now they know."
- The button. The group turns on both of them. And Terry, vindicated: "Are you seeing this? THIS is why I should kill him. This is the third time."

WHY IT WORKS

THREE TWISTS, EACH ONE RECONTEXTUALIZES THE LAST.

He faked the bite. Then we learn he faked it to expose the hater. Then that the hater was never the villain at all, just the chronic victim of this guy's setups.

Nobody is clean by the end, and that's the point. Two idiots who will fake a death and commit a murder just to win a point in front of their friends.

A dimly lit room with a lamp and a window. The lamp is on the left, casting a warm glow. The window is on the right, showing a view of the outside. The room appears to be a living area with a couch and a coffee table.

THE BITS · SAME WORLD, SAME CAST

FOUR VERTICALS THAT FEED THE TRAILER.

DON'T TOUCH ME

Zombie POV chases Cathy down a dark street. She turns and screams him off, and he bolts. We never see him, only the hands going up. A zombie flat out terrified of a woman's wrath, exactly like any guy at a bar.

EXTRA TEETH

Terry is standing over Dean with the knife when Cristian raises his hand. He has a question. The room stops a murder and hears him out, and what he wants is Terry's teeth. He will not explain why.

PREP

Terry insists on cutting the vegetables. He is enjoying it far too much to follow the conversation, and the other cook cannot name what they are witnessing. Shot like a thriller.

THE LOUD ONE

Five people crouched behind a parked car. Terry is whispering. Dean keeps hushing him, and every hush is louder than the whisper. Terry finally snaps, the car alarm goes off, and everyone turns on Terry while Dean sits there delighted.

LOOK

A dark, atmospheric room with a lit lamp and a person lying down. The scene is dimly lit, with a warm glow from a lamp in the background. A person is lying down in the foreground, partially obscured by shadows. The overall mood is mysterious and unsettling.

TEASER TRAILER • 90 SECONDS

THE MONSTERS ARE OUTSIDE. THE PROBLEM IS IN THE ROOM.

Ninety seconds that take themselves completely seriously. Boarded windows, a rag going into water that is already pink, something dragging past outside, a man tied to a chair asking his friends to put him down. Every horror beat played dead straight.

And underneath all of it, the real thing: your friends are exhausting and strange, and the apocalypse does not fix that.

CAST

TWO IDIOTS AT WAR. THREE PEOPLE WATCHING IN HORROR.

TERRY / JOSH (DIRECTING)

Overtly confident and completely relaxed in his violent logic.

DEAN

Understated, sharp, insanely reliable, and quietly a motherfucker of a friend.

CATHY

Same instinct, shorter fuse. Gets more openly pissed off, and we get her full wrath in Don't Touch Me.

CRISTIAN / HIMSELF

Nyla patches him up bloody in the cold open. Real missing teeth, real practical grit, and the strangest request anybody makes.

NYLA

Caretaker and nurse. The most grounded person here, and the straight man for whatever the audience is thinking.

A dimly lit living room interior. In the foreground, a dark-colored sofa is partially visible. To the right, a small table holds a lamp with a warm-toned shade. In the background, a window is covered with light-colored curtains, through which some daylight is visible. The walls are a neutral color, and a wooden panelled wall is on the right side of the frame.

PRODUCTION

SINGLE DAY SHOOT.

DAYLIGHT · INTERIORS

The sketch and the kitchen. Windows get boarded, so the room stays dark whenever we shoot and nobody races the sun.

CREW

A DP, someone on sound, and a floater to swing between the locked cameras, the lights and playback. Three people.

AFTER SUNSET · EXTERIOR

The Loud One at the curb, then Don't Touch Me and the trailer pickups. Any residential street, a zombie, an actress, a camera.

GEAR COVERED

Three FX3s and two matte lights. Three cameras rolling means we keep going between takes and chase whatever turns up.

WHO WE NEED

THREE ROLES AND A SMALL CREW.

Dean, Nyla and Cathy are open. Also looking for a DP, someone on sound, and a floater to swing between cameras and lights.

Single day shoot. A three minute sketch plus a few extra fun bits, one pagers, shot while everyone is already there. Out for Halloween.

Three FX3s and two matte lights are covered, so three cameras roll at once and we keep going between takes. Come play. The script is written but nothing in it is precious, and the best stuff will be whatever people find on the day.

If you want in, or you know who should play one of these, tell me.
